

Abstract of the Disclosure

Systems, methods, and device are provided for device status identification. One method embodiment includes transmitting an SNMP message to a device. The method includes opening a socket connection on the 5 device in response to an SNMP error message returned from the device. And, the method includes initiating a time-out function upon opening the socket connection.